Hildebrand rode Broomstick instead of Burns, because the latter received word just before this race that his four-day-old baby had died suddenly, and he cancelled all his engagements for the day and went home. Hildebrand rode Broomstick well. He stuck to the mare, while Odom, on the latter, forced the pace. They turned into stretch on even terms and then folloued a terrific drive. Terrible Slaughter of Troops in the Operations Since Aug. 23 Reported to the Mikado Showing that Russian Retirement Across the Taitse River Was Forced at an-Appalling Cost.

GREAT BATTLE IS NOW RAGING AGAINST KUROKI'S FLANKING ARMY

Russians Are Reported from Tokio to Still Hold Possession of Liaoyang, Though the Main Body of Their Troops Has Been Fighting North of the River.

TOKIO, Sept. 2.—The fighting at Liaoyang was continued until a late hour last night. It was resumed at dawn to-day. The fate of the great bulk of the retreating Russian army hinges upon the bravery and Before falling back, Gen. Kuropatkin intended that his left, to the eastward and northward of Liaoyang, should be greatly strengthened, in the hope of checking Gen. Kuroki's advance around his flank and to protect his line of retreat and communication.

The greatest portion of this protecting force seems to have been massed in the neighborhood of Heiyingtal, twelve miles northeast of L'aoyang, where it was fiercely assaulted by Gen. Kuroki at 11 o'clock Thursday morning. The result of this fighting is not known. If Gen. Kuroki wins and strikes the flank of the retreating Russian army and reaches the railroad it will place the Russians in a serious predicament.

USED CAPTURED RUSSIAN GUNS.

Yesterday the Japanese managed to interfere seriously with the train service from Liaoyang. They used some guns captured from the Russians, together with some of their own, to bombard the railroad station af Liaoyang, thus preventing the entraining of Russian troops.

Few details of the pursuit of the Russian right have been received here. It is evident that the Russians are moving back slowly, contesting the ground and shielding their movement as far as possible.

Nothing concerning the actual occupation of Liaoyang has been received here. Official despatches indicate that the Russians were still in possession of Liaoyang this (Friday) morning.

The list of casualties in the fighting before Liaoyang is growing, and the indications are that it will prove to be the bloodiest battle since the Franco-Prussian war. The calculations of casualties must include the losses since Aug. 23, for the contest has been practically continuous since then. The Japanese have already reported over twenty-five thousand men killed of Liaoyang.

Marshal Oyama reports under date of Sept. 1: "The enemy was unable to resist our fierce attack and is retiring

"Our left and centre are hotly pursuing the enemy, who is in great confusion trying to retire to the right bank of the Taitse River.

"We captured some ten and a half centimetre cannon, which are now being used to bombard the Liaoyang Railway station. "Our right attacking the enemy at Hai-In-Tai, fifteen miles northeast that this is justifiable on strategic grounds.

As communicated to the press the despatch states that an artillery battle proceeded till the hour of sending it and that the Russians were retired.

A fine stop by Bransfield fixed Gessier.

Ivanoff, which suffered greatly in the earlier stages of the battle on the east front, and finally that the Russian losses for two days were 5,000 killed and wounded.

NOT ALL CROSSING THE RIVER.

The despatch as given out, therefore, does not admit that Gen. Kurepakin is withdrawing across he Taitse River entirely. It is possible that owing to the pressure of the Japanese the Russian army, as stated in the Tokio despatches, was thrown into confusion and greatly hampered. In light of the knowledge that the "main positions" of the Russians are on the north bank of the river, the despatch becomes intelligible. The artillery fight during the day makes it evident that a screen of Rus guns was used to cover the movement across the river.
